Dear Hanna,

What Degree? Which University? is a new and exciting free service that launched in August, for students in their final years of high school who are considering their university options.

This is a website written by current undergraduates and recent graduates to provide a detailed, yet comprehensible comparison of the degrees offered at the five main universities in Sydney:

- Macquarie University
- University of New South Wales
- University of Sydney
- University of Technology, Sydney
- University of Western Sydney

Importantly, What Degree? Which University? will also assist students in making informed decisions, as they bridge the gap between high school and university, including information about part-time jobs, accommodation options and travel.

As a website written 'for students, by students', What Degree? Which University? is authentic and reliable, and it will remain independent from the universities it profiles. The website will not simply describe the degrees, but will feature questionnaires completed by current undergraduates or recent graduates. These questionnaires provide insight into aspects of the degrees which have appealed to students, or which took them unawares, as well as their comments on university life and the opportunities it provides to students.

The website will be an excellent opportunity for school leavers to hear directly from university students, thereby assisting them in selecting the best path for their university studies.

We would be very grateful if you could please inform careers advisors around Sydney about What Degree? Which University? In the coming months, we will be expanding our website to include information on Melbourne universities, as well as more universities around NSW. The website can be found at www.whatdegreewhichuniversity.com.

Yours sincerely,

Anna Westbrook
